

Project: Copyediting Client Bio for Job Application

Example: Final Edited Bio

Daniel Falk was born in New York to immigrant parents, both Holocaust survivors, who eventually settled in Israel during and after WWII, then NY. He is a graduate of NYU in Poli-Sci and Columbia University with an MA in Special Education and Behavioral Healthcare and an additional BA in Jazz Piano/Music Theory & Composition.

1993-1996: He was an Executive Producer of music videos in Los Angeles.

1998-2021: He operated Camp Huntington, NY, serving thousands of clients over 2 years in residential therapeutic services for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD).

2008-2012: He led Autism services for CRC Health and Aspen Education ending when he assumed ownership of the Huntington program.

While living in Israel in 2018, Daniel worked at Therapix in Tel Aviv, a medical cannabis pharma development company, focused on pain care.

Since 2000, He has developed single and multi-family properties in NYC and upstate NY and has extensive land-use approval experience.

Daniel was a longtime board member of the High Falls Center nonprofit, supporting disability funding, programmatic services, and the NY State Camp Directors Association. He has served as an advisory board member for the NY State Medical Council of the NY State Health Department. He is a regulatory and compliance specialist for residential therapeutic programs in NY. He was a Mayoral Fellow in NYC Mayor Bloomberg's Office of Adult Education, where he designed a language tutoring system for the NY Public Library system, called Tutor Hub, which remains the primary learning resource for NYC immigrants.

In 2019, Daniel founded Inclusive Hemp, a start-up to help disability service nonprofits gain wholesale access to the Hemp markets. Inclusive Hemp is a cohort of the Canopy Boulder cannabis investment company. An avid sports and outdoors man Daniel enjoys sharing in the many wonderful activities in Boulder, CO with his wife and three children. He is an enthusiast for compassionate and joyful living who enjoys healthy engagement and debate, while encouraging positive change to create a world that nurtures and works for everyone.

Example: Original unedited client copy

Daniel Falk is a graduate of NYU in Poli-Sci and Columbia University, MA in Special Education and Behavioral Healthcare, with a 2nd BA in Jazz Piano/Music Theory & Composition. 1993-96: Falk was an Executive Producer of music videos in Los Angeles. 1998 through 2021, Falk operated Camp Huntington, serving thousands of clients for over 20 years in residential therapeutic services in NY, for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities (I/DD). Falk led Autism services for CRC Health and Aspen Education for five years ending in 2012 when he assumed ownership of the Huntington program. He was a longtime board member of the High Falls Center nonprofit, supporting disability funding and programmatic services, and the NY State Camp Directors Association. Falk served as an advisory board member for the NY State Medical Council of the NY State Health Department. Falk is a regulatory and compliance specialist for residential therapeutic programs in NY. Falk was a Mayoral Fellow in NYC Mayor Bloomberg's Office of Adult Education, where he designed a language tutoring system for the NY Public Library system, called Tutor Hub, which remains the primary learning resource for NYC immigrants. While living in Israel, Falk worked at Therapix in Tel Aviv in 2018, a medical cannabis pharma development company, focused on pain care. Since 2000, Falk has developed single and multi-family properties in NYC and upstate NY and has extensive land-use approval experience. In 2019, Daniel founded Inclusive Hemp, a start-up to help disability service nonprofits gain wholesale access to the Hemp markets, and is a cohort of the Canopy Boulder cannabis investment company. Daniel was born in New York to immigrant parents, both Holocaust survivors, who eventually settled in Israel during and after WWII, then NY. An avid sports and outdoorsman, Falk enjoys sharing in the many wonderful activities in Boulder, CO with his wife and three children. An enthusiast for compassionate and joyful living, Falk enjoys healthy engagement and debate, while encouraging positive change to create a world that nurtures and works for everyone.